

Starting an Essay Outline

1. Choose a topic. Before you write, think of what you are most interested in, what you know about, or what you are comfortable with.	physics (no knowledge) horses (no experience) dating (embarrassing) ✓ school (I know about school.)
2. Limit your topic. Narrow it down, for example, by place, time, type, name or activity	my high school (boring) VCC (everyone is choosing this topic) public schools (broad) Canadian schools in the future (hard) ✓ going back to school (I know about this.)
3. Choose one controlling idea. Brainstorm or map out related thoughts on your topic. Choose one idea interesting enough to have supporting details or examples.	need support from others (boring) hard on your family (can't think of examples) expensive to go full-time (boring) ✓ fun (I can think of ideas and examples of fun related to going back to school.)
4. Write a thesis statement. THESIS = TOPIC + CONTROLLING IDEA The thesis statement is a complete sentence that tells the reader what you are going to explain in your essay. Optional: Expand your thesis statement to include how you will develop your ideas. Hint: Teachers often ask students to explain or describe something or give an opinion. These questions can often be rewritten into a thesis statement which will help you develop your ideas.	I like school a lot. (general) Fun is good for me. (general) My school is VCC. (fact) Going back to school can be fun for many reasons. TOPIC + CONTROLLING IDEA (+method of development) This thesis statement expresses an opinion and includes the method of development.
5. Outline three main supporting points or ideas. Choose three strong ideas that you can back up with specific examples and specific details. Ask yourself questions to help yourself expand on what you mean: Explain Describe Support Organize each idea in a paragraph form	lunches are fun (weak idea) back-to-school fashion is fun (weak idea) not working is fun (not on topic "back to school") 1) friends at school can be fun (Who are your friends? Why are they fun? What do they do?) old friends, new friends 2) school activities can be fun (Which school activities are fun and why? Think of examples.) sports, clubs, dances 3) schoolwork can be fun (What aspects of schoolwork make going back to school fun?) new subjects (which subjects?) new teachers (who?) getting good marks
